How you can receive your bounties

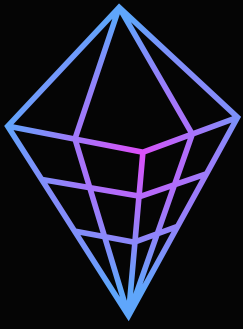

After the ICO ends, your final amount of points will be visible in your Serenity account.

We will distribute 3% Serenity tokens in proportion to the amount of points each bounty campaign participant has earned in each category. For example, after counting all Twitter retweets, we will make a table where everyone who reposted will see their personal bounty points earned in the Twitter category. Since there are Serenity points dedicated to the Twitter category, those points will be distributed between all members participating the bounty campaign according to the amount of points they have earned. Then we will continue to the Facebook category, then BTT Signature campaign, etc.

To summarize, the points earned in each campaign will NOT be pooled together but rather the points in each category will be divided in each category separately.

The information about points already earned is displayed in your Serenity account. It is updated every 48 hours.

Once all of the points are counted, you will see your Serenity points in your Serenity account.
